AMUSEMENTS.

"A Runaway Girl" at English's Opera House.

The people came in droves to English's Opera House last night, the occasion being the second visit of that highly diverting large cast has undergone numerous changes since last year, and some of these have rather improved the general effect. "Jimmy" Powers has been succeeded in the burlesque character of Flipper by Arthur Dunn, who makes up in hilarious fun what he may lack in polish. Marie Celeste has been replaced in the part of Winifred Gray by Celeste Wynn, and the latter is a decided improvement in both looks and voice. John B. Park is another newcomer, having assumed the role of Guy Stanley, played last season by Van Rensselaer Wheeler. Mr. Park sings and dances fully as well as did Mr. Wheeler. It is regretted that when Mae Baker gave up the part of Dorothy Stanley to Belle Travers she did not also transfer the delightful song "I Love You, My Love, I Do." It was missed last night. Joseph C. Fay is still carrying the role of Professor Tamarind, Spottiswood Aitken that of Creel, the eccentric Scotchman, and Mirlam Lawrence that of Carmenita, the fat little girl whose beauty draws the professor away from his sedate occupation of teaching in a convent. All these parts are played as well as last season.

The success of the piece is clearly due to its wealth of tuneful and catchy lyries and its funny songs, most of these accompanied by splendid choruses, with frequent clever manipulations of the lights. The musical numbers of the first act are the picnic chorus of the convent girls, with goblet and about the streets. The boxes were opened plate accompaniment; "O, Sly Cigarette," by Celeste Wynn and convent chorus; "I before, Am Monarch of All I See," by Henry Leone as chief of the gypsy band, assisted by Messrs. Regis, Holly and Smith; choruses of peasants and sabot girls, with picturesque dances: "I Don't Think That's the Sort of Girl I Care About," John B. Park and chorus of cook tourists, Mr. Park's when he passed in the rear of the car graceful dance being a special feature; "I'm | from which he alighted. Only a Poor Little Singing Girl." Miss Wynn and chorus of gypsies, tourists and peasants; "Oh, 'Twould Break My Heart We Ever Had to Part," duet by Miss Wynn and Mr. Parks; songs and dances of various nationalities, Miss Jerome and Mr. Dunn: "Follow the Man from Cook's," Mr. Dunn and principals of the company; finale, "To Venice." The second act was enlivened by the following excellent numbers: "For We're as Happy as Happy Can Be," Miss Wynn and Messrs. Park and Dunn; "O. Listen to the Band," Miss Travers and He was at the City Dispensary later and chorus, with the fetching military march | claimed he was awakened by an assault arranged by Mr. Powers: "And the Boy Guessed Right the Very First Time." Miss Wynn and company; "For I Love Society, Real Society," Miss Lawrence and company, and "The Bogy Man," Miss Jerome and Mr. Dunn. The biggest hits were scored by Mr. Henry Leone and his gypsy band in the song "I'm Monarch of All I See." Miss Travers and chorus in "O. Listen to the Band" and Mr. Dunn and Miss Jerome in "The Bogy Man," the audience fairly going wild over the latter piece. with the pickanniny makeups, the effective handling of the lights and the catchy words. Mr. Dunn was finally forced to come out in his ludicrous darky costume and make a speech on behalf of himself and Miss Jerome, which was so funny that the audlence accepted it in lieu of an encore. The carnival scene in the last act is decerving of special mention on account of its great beauty of costumes, groupings and light effects. It is idle, however, to at- | Henry Hanff, Henry M. Mock and Charles tempt in the restricted space of a newspaper comment to enumerate the countless leasing features of "A Runaway Girl." One must see and hear the production to thoroughly appreciate its excellence, and that may be done for the last time to-night.

"An Unequal Match" is proving an excellent attraction at the Grand this week. With one or two exceptions, the principals of the stock company are winning new laurels by the excellence of their work. Miss Katherine Fisher, who has hitherto had only unimportant roles, is doing so well in the character of Bessie Hebblethwaite as to cause wonder that she should have been kept in the background so long.

The announcement that Clyde Fitch's new play, "Major Andre," is to be used by Charles J. FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND WILL REAP A LARGE BENEFIT.

The Attendance Greater than Ever Before-The Concert an Enjoyable Feature.

The tenth annual concert and ball given by the Indianapolis Fire Department last night at Tomlinson Hall was perhaps more successful in point of attendance than any other of the nine which the "laddies" have given in the years gone by. A conservative estimate places the big audience which came early to attend the concert at three thousand people. Long before 8 o'clock the main floor of Tomlinson Hall, with the exception of a small space which was kept clear in front of the stage, was crowded to its utmost capacity and within a short time the galleries were so uncom fortably crowded that many were forced to escape to the long corridors which environ the main hall in order to catch a breath of fresh air. The proverbial one more person kept coming, however, as late concert was over that locomotion was at all possible in the hall. The total receipts, which are to be devoted to the firemen's pension fund, were estimated at $1,800. Tomlinson Hall was dressed in gala at tire such as it seldom wears. From the ceiling were suspended great streamers of journey, and on their return they will reside with Mrs. Carey, 1219 North Delaware red, white and blue bunting draped to the center and caught up at the sides. Arrival of Belated Steamers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 .- The White Star line steamer Oceanic, which arrived this afternoon from Liverpool and Queenstown, was somewhat delayed by adverse winds and rough seas. Nearly all during the passage northwest gales, rough and squally weather, with very high, confused seas, were encountered. Nothing was seen of of the Arkansas Midland Railroad forty the belated steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. This morning about 5 o'clock an unknown east-bound steamer passed uncomfortably close to the Oceanic, barely avoiding a collision. The steamer was supposed to be a North German Lloyd vessel, probably the Trave, which left here yesterday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 .- The Herald, to morrow, will say: "Indications point to a centest over the will of the late Charles be definitely ascertained, but Mr. Hoyt in-
